GENEVA, Feb. 25.—The tocsin was sounded at 4 o'clock this morning in the village of Musiege in Haute Savoie, bringing out the fire brigade and all the villagers, who saw immense flames rising to the sky above a neighboring village. They dashed to the rescue, but upon arriving at the spot they found the villagers asleep and no fire.

Then they discovered that nature had played a joke. A beautiful aurora borealis hovering over the village had given the impression from afar of a huge conflagration. The villagers chaffed the firemen, asking them to extinguish the aurora borealis.
